

The Data Protection Act 2018

The DPA 2018 introduces exemptions to the normal GDPR rules as well as additional obligations when processing Special Categories Data and criminal records data. It also implements the Law Enforcement Directive which regulates the processing of personal data about criminal investigations and prosecutions.

This is an essential workshop for all Data Protection practitioners who wish to further their understanding of the UK Data Protection regime.

“ The session was really informative and helped me to see how the Data Protection Act fits in with GDPR, plus it also helped me to understand the exemptions. ”
